

TITLE 12—DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE
Division 10—Director of Revenue
Chapter 102—Sales/Use Tax—Taxpayers Rights

12 CSR 10-102.016 Refunds and Credits

PURPOSE: Section 144.190, RSMo, permits a seller to file a claim for refund of an over-payment of sales or use taxes resulting from a mistake of fact or law and it permits a purchaser that is not able to obtain a refund of an over-payment of sales or use tax from the seller to file a claim for refund with the department. Section 144.100, RSMo, requires a seller to file an amended return to correct an error or omission on a return. This requirement is in addition to the requirement that a refund application be filed. Section 144.746, RSMo, allows the seller and the department to extend by agreement the time to file a claim for refund. Section 144.030.2, RSMo, establishes special refund procedures for purchasers of domestic utilities under a non-domestic utility rate classification. This rule explains requirements for obtaining a refund or credit on over-payment of sales and use taxes.

(1) In general, if a seller has overpaid tax, the seller may file a claim for a refund with the department. If a purchaser is not able to obtain a refund from the seller, the purchaser may qualify to file a claim for refund with the department.

(2) Basic Application.

(A) A seller may file a claim for a refund within ten (10) years after the date of an overpayment. The date of the overpayment is the due date of the original return or the date paid, whichever is later. The department will not consider a claim unless it is filed within the ten- (10-) year period. Every claim must be in writing, signed by the applicant, and must state the specific grounds upon which the claim is founded. If the overpayment is due to an error or omission in a previously filed return, the claim must be accompanied by an amended return for each period in which the tax was originally reported. If the error or omission is corrected in the return immediately following the filing period in which the error or omission occurred, no amended return or claim for refund is required.

(B) The person requesting the refund or credit must be the person who is legally obligated to remit the tax to the Department of Revenue or the purchaser that originally paid the tax to the seller. A purchaser seeking a refund of an erroneously paid tax must first seek a refund from the seller. A seller may file a claim on behalf of the purchaser by submitting a claim for refund and amended returns for the period(s) in which the tax was erroneously remitted or the seller may provide an assignment of rights to the purchaser to file the claim for refund. The purchaser may also file a claim for refund with the department if—

1. The seller refuses to assign the rights to file a claim for refund within sixty (60) days of the date of the purchaser's written request to the seller;
2. The seller is out of business; or

3. The purchaser cannot locate the seller. The claim by the purchaser is subject to any offset, defense, or any claim the director has against the purchaser or the seller.

(C) The department will notify a registered seller of refund claims filed by a purchaser without the seller's assignment of rights. If the seller objects to the refund claim, the department will not pay the refund. If the seller agrees that the purchaser may pursue a refund claim, or fails to respond to the notification within thirty (30) days of the date of notification, the department will process the refund and will amend the return of the seller to reflect the refund if granted. A refund claim will not be considered filed until the seller agrees the purchaser may pursue a refund claim or thirty (30) days after the department has notified the seller of the purchaser's claim.

(D) The department will issue a statement approving a credit in the amount of the overpayment instead of a refund if the seller requests a credit on the claim. A seller cannot take a credit for any overpayment of tax unless prior approval has been obtained from the department. If it is determined later that the seller will incur no future liability, for example if the business is closed, the seller may return the credit authorization to the department and request a refund. A purchaser may not obtain a credit.

(E) If a sale is rescinded, no amended return or claim for refund is required. The seller may adjust its gross receipts on its next filed return. The adjustment may not exceed the gross receipts for the filing period.

(F) Section 32.068, RSMo, establishes the interest rate paid on refunds. Interest does not apply to a credit.

(G) The seller and the department may extend, by signed agreement (waiver of statute of limitations), the period allowed for filing a claim for refund. Such an agreement is allowed only if the time for filing a claim for refund has not yet expired.

(H) In addition to the refund claim procedure described above, a purchaser of taxable, non-domestic utility services using any portion of the services for nontaxable domestic use may also claim a refund from the department on the domestic use portion of the purchase. A purchaser of utility services for domestic use for occupants of residential apartments, condominiums, and nursing homes through a single or master meter may claim a refund on the domestic use portion of the purchase, which includes common areas and facilities as well as vacant units. The claim for refund must be filed between the first day of the first month (January 1) and the fifteenth day of the fourth month (April 15) following the year of purchase.

(I) A taxpayer is not entitled to receive a refund for overreported taxable sales if it previously received a refund for this same issue and guidance has been previously provided. This restriction only applies to overpayments based on sales and it does not apply to overpayments based on purchases. However, a taxpayer may receive more than one (1) refund for the same issue of overreported taxable sales if the subsequent overreported taxable sales were the result of any of the following:

1. Receipt of additional information or an exemption certificate from the purchaser of the item at issue;
2. A decision of a court of competent jurisdiction or the administrative hearing commission; or 3. Changes in regulations or policy by the Department of Revenue.

(3) Examples.

(A) A seller collects tax on a sale to a customer that takes place in August and reports it on its August sales tax return. In October, that customer presents a valid exemption certificate for the August sale. To claim a refund, the seller must complete a claim for refund and submit it with a copy of the invoice, the customer's exemption certificate, and an amended August return.

(B) A carpet seller determines that in the past ten (10) years it has been collecting and remitting sales tax on carpet sales in which it is also installing the carpet in homes and businesses. The seller purchases its carpet from a wholesaler located outside of the state. Therefore, the carpet seller should have been paying use tax on its purchases of the carpet from its wholesaler and selling its carpet without charging sales tax on its installation sales. The seller should complete amended sales tax returns for each period during the ten (10) years and amended use tax returns for each period during the ten (10) years. If the amended returns result in an overpayment, the carpet seller may claim a refund by completing a refund application.

(C) A computer store sells a computer to a customer and reports the tax on its May sales tax return. In July the customer returns the computer for a full refund. Because the May sales tax has been remitted to the department the computer store adjusts its gross receipts for July. If the adjustment exceeds its July gross receipts, the computer store must submit an application for refund and an amended return for May.

(D) A manufacturer discovers it paid tax on its purchase of a piece of equipment that qualified for an expanded plant exemption. The manufacturer purchased the equipment from an equipment supply company who reported the tax to the department. The supply company may request the refund from the department on behalf of the manufacturer by submitting a refund application, the manufacturer's exemption certificate, and an invoice of the sale or the supply company may provide the manufacturer an assignment of rights statement allowing the manufacturer to file the refund claim with the department.

(E) In September 2019, a taxpayer discovers it paid tax on a January 2009 sale for which it has an exemption certificate. The taxpayer submits a refund application for the exempt sale. Because the due date and the date paid of the original January 2009 return and payment was February 20, 2009, the refund application will be denied because it is not within the ten- (10-) year statute of limitations.

(F) In 2017, an apartment complex under a non-domestic rate classification pays the water bill, including sales tax, to the utility company for the entire complex. The apartment complex may file a claim for refund on its 2017 purchases of water prior to April 15, 2018.

(G) A nursing home that is under a non-domestic rate classification pays for the electricity, including tax for the entire facility in 2010, 2011, and 2012. The electric company may file a claim for refund on behalf of the nursing home in January 2020, as long as it is filed within ten (10) years of the due date or the date paid, whichever is later.

(H) A purchaser purchases manufacturing equipment on July 1, 2012, and pays sales tax on the purchase. On October 1, 2012, the purchaser presents an exemption certificate to the seller and requests the seller in writing to file a refund request for the taxes paid. The seller does not respond to the purchaser's request within sixty (60) days. The purchaser then files a refund claim with the department and the department notifies the seller of the claim for refund. The seller does not respond to the department's notification. The department verifies that the equipment qualifies for the exemption and the taxes paid on the purchase. The department issues the refund to the purchaser. This action, however, is predicated on the department verifying that the seller did report that as a taxable sale on the July 2012 sales tax return and verifying that this return was paid in full.

(I) A purchaser purchases manufacturing equipment on July 1, 2012, and pays sales tax on the purchase. On October 1, 2012, the purchaser presents an exemption certificate to the seller and requests the seller in writing to file a refund for the taxes paid. The seller does not respond to the purchaser's request within sixty (60) days. The purchaser then files a refund claim with the department and the department notifies the seller of the claim for refund. The seller responds to the department's notification and directs the department to not refund the tax. The department cannot issue the refund to the purchaser.
